To Feel The Sun (2013) About book: The description (particularly the description of the setting) was very clear and well-done. For someone who is very visual, like myself, I really could visualize all that she was describing. I wasn't particularly touched emotionally, but the story wasn't lifeless either.

Conduction is how heat transfers through direct contact with objects that are touching. Any time that two objects or substances touch, the hotter object passes heat to the cooler object. (That hot sand passed the heat energy right into my poor feet!) Think of a row of dominoes that are all lined up.
