If youâ€™re using a lower temperature, add more time per pound. If youâ€™re cooking hotter, it will take less time per pound. Always start on medium (250-275). If you start cooking a big piece of meat at too high a temperature, you drive the blood in the meat to the surface, creating unsightly blood spots on the meat.

Answers. Broiling is when meat is placed in the oven and left to cook (a flame above the food). As for buying meat and such, all you have to do is pick it up, look and see if it maybe has too much fat (because you'll want to trim that on chicken breasts) and the weight (since it's just you than you don't need to much).

Cook the turkey at 250°F for 20 additional minutes for each pound. No basting is necessary. Many variables come into play when cooking a turkey. The only way to be absolutely sure that your turkey is fully cooked is to use a meat thermometer. Interior breast meat should be 170°F and 180°F for thigh meat.
